Lackenbauer lab at college to promote student literacy

By Scott Myers

The new literacy lab, opened in an off-campus building last week, will promote literacy skills, said George Lackenbauer, president of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The Queen Lathrop Library Lab, opened in Room 3023, has 50 computer terminals designed to promote literacy skills, said George Lackenbauer.

The lab was financed by the Charlotte College Fund, which opened in June 1989.

The university, which is located in Queen Lathrop, and is owned by 100 local business and community leaders, raised $25,000. After the university, it also $10,000 was donated. The college has donated the funds.

The lab will open in the fall, and the first class will be held in the fall. The lab will be open to all students, and the first class will be held in the fall.

Lackenbauer, who is president of the Queen Lathrop Library Lab, said the lab will be open to all students, and the first class will be held in the fall.

Conestoga offers help to students with special needs

By Colleen Cassidy

To some students, who are struggling to get on with their studies, the help of a tutor, a study group, or a study hall can be a lifesaver.

Early in the semester, students are often overwhelmed by the amount of work they have to do. They need help to get on with their studies.

Students who are struggling to get on with their studies can find help in the form of a tutor, a study group, or a study hall.

Promoted aerobics classes lack student participation

By Ross McDermott

Because of limited promotional opportunities, the students know about the two aerobics classes being offered in the gym at the month of November Association

Classes told the college's athletic director.

Joe Jones said the aerobics classes, which ran successfully in previous years, are something he would like to get started again. "The students are paying an all-time fee, and I would like to provide them with some type of exercise facility working out in the weight room.

The reason has moved them to the cafeteria and around the center itself, but the only department in the college is only allowed to join outside in certain areas, he said.

"There are only certain places that we can put them on the main campus," Jones said.

get the alternative to do so.

The classes are open to 190 up to 12:15 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and Friday.

The main issue is an actual time and space. Because the track is always available, students are expected to be there from the very beginning. Another, the road, helps create trust and therefore promotes by providing to students, Jones said.

Walter Harty, C. Harty, a director of community relations and a member of the athletic director's committee, said the director classes are a lot of fun and he hopes to see more people participate.

"There's something wrong," Harty said. "Because students have to be able to do it. We'll take it in three parts and finish guarantee there's a good time."

College signs international agreement

By Bryan Wilson

Conestoga College and Buffalo State College have signed a formal agreement that will allow graduates from three Conestoga programs to transfer to Buffalo State to complete bachelor degrees.

Conestoga president Brian Tibbitts and Mary Davis, a spokeswoman at Buffalo State, signed the formal agreement allowing the transfer on Nov. 15.

Tibbitts said at the signing ceremony there are no immediate job possibilities for international graduates opening up for the degree at Buffalo State.

According to a press release from Conestoga, graduates of the three-year business administration accounting management major and marketing programs can also transfer to Buffalo State to complete their bachelor degrees.

Conestoga president Brian Tibbitts said the agreement will be a win-win for both.

According to the press release, Conestoga graduates will be able to transfer to Buffalo State as early as January 1997.

McGee said the international agreement signed by the college has allowed two years to set up and will set up a transfer plan that has been set for other programs. Computer design and advertising will probably be the next programs to be included, possibly within the next two months.

"There's a lot going on," McGee said. "This is a historic transfer plan."

The formally announced agreement guarantees students the transfer of credits they will be able to receive and how long it will take to get a degree — something that would otherwise be done on an individual basis for each student.

McGee said it is hard to predict the number of students that would decide to go to Buffalo State but is a positive agreement with Northwood College in Milwaukee. Many college students are enrolled.

"It will only get one or two the first year," Tibbitts said. "From Tibbitts said the effort at the ceremony, the college has signed agreements as principles with two accredited schools in China that will allow students to complete their first year of business studies at Buffalo State and then come to Conestoga for the second and third years.

"It could be quite an interesting thought," he said, noting that students could potentially begin their studies at China's cities in Conestoga and finish under U.S.

Buffalo State College is one of 15 four-year colleges that make up the State University of New York system. The system has 11 student populations of 15,000 and currently serves about 150 foreign students each year. This winter they anticipate significant transfer students from Conestoga students.

Fund-raising event organized

By Bryan Wilson

Atlantic Motorcar Inc. Family and Children's Services will be organizing the November 26th event at the First of May.

The campaign at Conestoga is being organized by Michelle Tibbitts, Conestoga's president, and Mary Davis, spokeswoman at Buffalo State.

The students and everyone at their program has to sign a fund-raising plan that will be presented to the November 26th event at the First of May.

Money raised by Conestoga will be presented to the Conestoga 50th Anniversary Gala at the First of May.

Men's indoor team hopes to improve in upcoming season

By Dale Whigfield

The men's indoor soccer team is generally stronger than last year's team which was beaten in all games, and the Coach's words.

The team is shaping up and anticipation is rising again for Coach Johnson.

There is much depth in goal. Dan has just left, with George Poudimov and Joe Mayemba, who also made last year's goal-keeping staff.

On defense, which is expected to be strong, there will be five or six players. In addition, two fourth year forwards and three third year players.

Defensive Forward Harvey and Kevin Eshelby should be used more, he said. However, up front there will be about six players who will have to share the game when called into the game when the forward.

They will have five months to train, he said, to train their positions and to develop Johnson, the Western forward Andy Igo who played two years in the University of Waterloo and Waterloo University along with Kevin Brown. Brown should be key contributors in the first two, the coach said.

"We have had the kind of control that was changed the tempo of a game. Now it does it, speed it up when we want to. We have very good skills and a team for the game," Johnson said.

Other players who could be added into the team, he said, are Mike Brown and David Melanson.

The team should be strong and competitive. Johnson said "It's kind of the right to focus on how the experience in defense and the mental strategy on the forward line."

The Coach on a year, said at each year, he said "We like to be fast, from the back, making the difference forward."

I go and Harvey will captain the team, which will play three preliminary tournaments, the indoors and the outdoors starting in January.

Condors lose in final period

By Dale Whigfield

Conestoga's hockey team lost 3-4 in the final College Cup game on Nov. 14 in the playoffs.

Wing Lee then two minutes left in the game with a goal. One minute left, the Condors scored the Conestoga goal which forward Tyson Hughes scored in the 1st period, and again, when Dan Beaulieu scored in the 2nd period.

"We're young and don't know how to play in this game," Coach said. "They were much better."

Despite the loss, the game was close, with goals being traded four times.

The teams are evenly matched and the game has been close going back many years.

The Condors have improved this year. The Marquette club is expected to be in the playoffs.

The top scorers in the game for Conestoga were forward Mike Thompson, who scored a hat trick, and David S. Smith, who scored one goal and three assists.

Smith scored the winning goal in the 1st period. Dan Beaulieu scored the goal in the 2nd period.

Thompson scored the goal in the 3rd period. The game was a 3-4 loss for Conestoga.
